The 34th annual meeting of the Classical Association of the Pacific States, Northern Section, was held on March 9th, 1946, at Seattle Pacific College.

Dr. Winifred Weter introduced Professor Otto M. Miller, the Vice-President of the College, whose welcome was very warm and generous.

Father Hohn H. Taylor, S. J., of the Jesuit Novitiate, Sheridan, Oregon, was the first speaker. His paper, "The Stoic Sage in the Letters of Seneca", made for a clearer understanding of Stoicism and Seneca's desire for it to be more appealing to his fellow Romans. Although Seneca was not a deep thinker, he can be admired for his temperance and self-denial; his insistence on justice and moderation. In a reign of terror, he offered a practical philosophy.

Miss Estella Kyne, Wenatchee High School, used 'Omnium Gatherum' as the title of her interesting paper in which she spoke of art in ancient Rome, the influence of the Romans as shown by the discharge button worn by the Veterans, the Medal of Honor, and the numerals on the war bonds. Reference was made to Pluto's Realm in the military service from England to the Continent. Hercules and his Labors - Hercules and the signs of the Zodiac were discussed. 'The Plot to Overthrow Christmas', in Thirteen by Corwin, and the Christmas edition of the Gonzaga Bulletin were cited as being particularly useful in club work of which Eta Zeta Theta is the college honorary Latin society and Junior Classical League for high schools. Miss Kyne urged more publicity for the Classics and she is doing her part. (cf. Classical Outlook, page 55, March 1946.)

Dr. Weter read a letter from Miss Helen Dean, Spokane, who was unable to attend. Like Miss Kyne she is an enthusiast for clubs.

Dr. Melville Hatch, University of Washington, Department of Zoology, read a most interesting paper on "Greek Science", a subject not too well known to classicists and historians. First he mentioned the importance of Greek science in the early development of that field. Then he defined science as organized knowledge. Before printing the loss through fire and replacements of later writers was very great. Greek science and philosophy arose about the sixth century B. C. Outstanding among these were:

Herodotus - 430 - known as the Father of History.

Hippocrates - 430 - Father of Medicine; also Hippocrates of Chios, a geometer whose work was incorporated by Euclid, Book 3.

Thucydides - Father of Scientific History, whose narrative, impartial in presentation, has never been excelled. Political and military matters were his primary interest.

Aristotle, Plato's pupil, who died 322 B. C., was the founder of many fields - zoology, botany, psychology, logic, metaphysics, and his specialty, ethics and politics. He was neither a scientist nor a mathematician.

Theophrastus, founder of botany, whose other works were lost.

Ptolemy I developed Alexandria to be the cultural center of the Greek world. There he established a library containing 20,000 volumes.

Herophilus - interested in human dissection but taboos prevented his progress.

Aristarchus of Samos, 280 B. C., an astronomer who believed the sun was the center of the solar system, an idea which did not take until modern times.

Archimedes of Syracuse, 287-212 B. C., interested in mathematics and physics, the greatest mathematician of all times. He and Aristotle are the most outstanding. Much of his work is preserved. They were more interested in theory than in practice of science.

The fourth and third centuries were the greatest periods in Greek science. The second century was the Roman period. Later ones who were outstanding were:

Aristarchus, who developed the science of grammar.

Hipparchus, the main source of Ptolemy.

Lucretius - died 55 B. C. whom Dr. Read considers the greatest of Latin writers.

Pliny who died in 79 A. D.

Strabo - 63 B. C. to 20 A. D. geographer.

Ptolemy of Alexandria, mentioned before.

Galen, died 199 A. D., a great doctor who dissected the Barbary ape. Only his medical writings are left.

Algebra was left for the Arabians to develop.

Dr. Hatch concluded by stating that:

the absence of printing cramped the the number of copies of a book and its influence; there was no system of mathematics for arithmetic; there was an absence of experimental methods - only descriptive and speculative - believed retarded by slavery in Greece; there was an absence of inductive logic - but all deductive; there was an absence of factual richness but Greek science had begun to fade out before the Barbarian Invasions so they cannot be blamed for this loss.

At the conclusion of the morning session there was a short recess to enjoy the wonderful sunshine before the luncheon, prepared and served by the Home Economics Department. As the dessert was being eaten, Dr. Weyer requested each to introduce the one on his or her right which gave all an opportunity to know each other. The place cards, a Roman lamp, added to the success of a delicious luncheon.

Before returning for the business meeting there was a brief organ recital.

At the business meeting Dr. A. E. Gordon, Sec'y.- Treas. of the Pacific States Association, gave a brief report in which he compared the memberships of the three Coast sections. A discussion of the Northern Section's finances or lack of them followed. The motion carried that when the membership dues are sent out a note be added requesting an additional contribution to be made for the local expenses. At the meeting last year of the Central Section it was voted to allow Dr. Gordon the sum of $25 toward his expenses. It was suggested that the Southern and Northern Sections do the same. The hat (of Professor Todd, U. of B. C.) was passed and a total of $19 was contributed to Dr. Gordon. Silent tribute was paid to Miss Jessie Lichtenberger of Seattle's Broadway High School who died last summer. The report of the nominating committee, Miss Calouri, Miss Kohler, Professor Todd, was made and the officers for the ensuing year are:

Dr. Wm. Moellering, Willamette University, Salem	President
Professor E. T. Burns, Whitman College, Walla Walla	Vice-President
Rev. J. H. Taylor, S. J., Jesuit Novitiate, Sheridan, Ore.,	Sec'y.- Treas.

Dr. Frederick Combella, U. of O., opened the afternoon program with his paper, "Words That Die". He referred to Homer's expression, Winged Words, as feathered and something that flies. From that he concluded that words were fleeting - hence dying. A lover of Homer, Dr. Combella refreshed our minds with phrases used by him, 'rosy-fingered Dawn', which Dr. Combella says should be 'gray-sandaled Dawn' for this area. The ~~March~~ ^{Feb.} Classical Journal contains one of Dr. Combella's papers.

"Overseas' Experiences" by Mr. Walter Campbell of Seattle, home only one month, explained much of the work that was done to furnish supplies. His language training was of particular value in the office of censorship. From New Zealand to Cairo, to Persia, Naples, to China on a special mission of which he could not tell, and home, were some of the high lights of his many experiences.

The meeting adjourned.

The 35th annual meeting of the Classical Association of the Pacific States, Northern Section, was held on May 31, 1947, at Whitman College, Walla Walla, Washington.

Postponed because of the absence of President Moellering, who had left for new teaching duties in California, and because of the illness of Vice-president Burns, the attendance was very small.

At the morning session, Dr. Burns introduced President Anderson of Whitman College, who welcomed the Classical Association to the campus. President Anderson insisted on the need of stressing the humanities in College education.

The Rev. F. J. Reidy, S.J., of Jesuit Novitiate, Sheridan, Oregon, explained a new course in Homeric Greek for beginners. The course, explained Father Reidy, is being used widely throughout the country in high schools and colleges with amazing success. An interesting discussion of the aims and techniques of this course and other similar courses followed Father Reidy's talk.

Mr. Gail Sheldon, instructor in Religion at Whitman College, had a paper on contacts between India and the ~~East~~ West prior to the advent of Christianity.

In the afternoon session, Mr. James W. Gladden of the Latin department of the Pasco, Washington, High School, gave a talk on learning and teaching foreign languages. He stressed the trend away from Latin and all foreign languages in the present high school curricula. In the discussion that followed, it was brought out that Latin is no worse off than the modern languages, at least in those high schools represented at the meeting.

Dr. Eli L. Allen, professor emeritus of Biblical Literature at Whitman College, gave the concluding lecture. His subject was "Archaeological Experiences in Persia." At the end of his talk he displayed some archaeological finds.

A business meeting was impossible, since the only members attending were Dr. Burns, Dr. Weter, and Father Taylor. Acting for the Association they picked Dr. Frederick Combellock as president for the following year and Miss Margaret Smutz as secretary-treasurer. Since they had not previously ~~found anyone~~ asked anyone to accept the vice-presidency, they agreed to ask Prof. O. J. Todd in the hope that he would accept.

John H. Taylor, S. J.
