Information about the Meeting

Place of Meeting: All sessions and social events will take place at St. Mark's College adjacent to the Vancouver School of Theology at the northeast corner of the U.B.C. campus.

Reception and Lunch: The reception on Friday, April 12, will be provided by the Department of Classics. Lunch on Saturday, April 13, is provided gratis to CAPN members through the courtesy of the Dean of Arts, U.B.C. Non-members and guests of members may attend the lunch at a charge of $12.00.

Please indicate on the form at the end of the Bulletin if you wish to attend the reception and/or lunch.

Accommodation: The campus of U.B.C. is a considerable distance from the city center and the nearest suitable off-campus housing [approximately 10 kilometers]. Only a limited number of rooms are available on campus. What little is available has been reserved for members of CAPN, either in the Faculty Club (hotel-style accommodation) or in the Vancouver School of Theology (residence accommodation). There are of course numerous hotels in the downtown area with a wide range of rates, but a block of rooms at a special rate for CAPN members has been reserved at the Sands Hotel (a Best Western Hotel), 1755 Davie Street, conveniently located to Stanley Park and English Bay. If you desire accommodation either on Campus or at the Sands Hotel at the Conference rate, please complete the appropriate portion of the form and return it to:

Professor James Russell

News from the University of British Columbia

During the current academic year Professor C. W. J. Eliot, a former member of the U.B.C. classics faculty and now at Mt. Allison University, N.B. is at U.B.C. preparing his contribution to the final reports on Anemurium, in conjunction with the U.B.C. members of the Anemurium excavation team. Professor G. N. Sandy will be resident in Aix-en-Provence for this academic year, pursuing research on the influences of the Greek novel on later European literature.

The U.B.C. Press has recently published books of Professors A. J. Podlecki and A. A. Barrett, respectively, The Early Greek Poets and their Times and Francis Rattenbury and British Columbia. [Francis Rattenbury was the architect of the B.C. parliament building and the Empress Hotel in Victoria.]

The Classics Department continues to be active in various archaeological projects. Professor Barrett participated in the excavation of the Romano-British city of Wroxeter [Viroconium], in which he has been involved for a number of years. Professor Hector Williams, recently returned from Athens where he served as Director of the Canadian Archaeological Institute, led a small team in an exploratory season of excavation on the citadel of Mytilene and also continued to direct the survey of the Arcadian city of Stymphalos, where the application of the latest geophysical prospecting equipment has produced striking evidence of the city plan. Professor James Russell inaugurated the newly established U.B.C. Archaeological Practicum at Capernaum, where he, along with five U.B.C. students, participated in the consortium excavating the eastern part of the site alongside the sea of Galilee.
