The CAPN treasury is in healthy condition. A few items call for comment:

1. The scholarship fund is quite large, and growing. In the past year, over $330 in contributions and interest were added to it, but only $150 disbursed.
2. The new, enlarged CAPN Newsletter seems to be much appreciated.
While the cost of printing it (determined by the number of pages) represents an increase, a new expedient has been found to reduce the cost of postage. Though we are nowhere near being large enough to obtain a bulk mailing permit, we have discovered "bulk mailing houses" which group the mailings of several small organizations into one batch. As a result, we can now mail US copies of the much larger, heavier Newsletter for $ .22, about half the cost of the old, lighter version. Canadian postage remains high, at over $ 1.00 per copy.
3. The relative health of the treasury might suggest a modest increase in our contribution to the National Committee on Latin and Greek. Our present level of $ 50 is the lowest among the regional organizations.
4. The Annual Meeting in Victoria last spring yielded a profit of some $ 191. The organizers of the meeting must project expenses, and set registration fees accordingly. Of course, such predictions can never be exact, and subventions from kindly deans etc., can be expected in general, but seldom in detail at the time that budgets are being drawn up. Some meetings run a deficit. The treasury appreciates Prof. Shrimpton's prudent management.

Respectfully submitted

News from Members and Announcements

Reed College

The Classics Department sponsored its second annual Latin Day last November for students taking Latin in High Schools around Oregon. Our keynote speaker was Robert Gurval of the University of Oregon, who spoke on "Politics and Propaganda on Roman Coinage." Reed Classics faculty offered seminars on "Roman Women" (Anita Estner), "Politics and Propaganda in the Augustan Poets" (Richard Tron), "How to Slander a Roman Emperor in One Easy Lesson" (Steven Johnstone), and "Philosophy at Rome: Epicureans and Stoics" (Walter Englert). Students and teachers from 7 High Schools attended.

Steven Johnstone (Ph.D. Ancient History, University of Chicago) has joined the Department as the Mac Arthur Chair of Ancient Civilization, teaching ancient history, language courses, and participating in the Humanities program. His research is primarily in Athenian Social History of the fifth and fourth centuries B.C.

Reed is in the process of joining the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome. Our first student in the program, Fred Eiden, a junior majoring in Classics is in Rome this semester.

Boise State University

In the winter of 1988, Dr. Charles Odahl of BSU started the Northwest Interinstitutional Council on Studies Abroad program at the Bath College of Higher Education in southwestern Britain. He offered courses on "Roman Civilization in Medieval England" to students attending the program from the consortium's member universities of Washington, Oregon and Idaho. Besides classroom lectures, he also guided the students on tours of relevant historical sites and monuments, such as the Roman early imperial legionary camp at Caerleon and late antique "Forts of the Saxon Shore" at Richborough and Portchester, the Roman villa at Chedworth and thermae complex at Bath, and various medieval monastic ruins and cathedrals. Odahl had previously taught in another NICSA program at the Central University of Avignon in the south of France.

In the 1988-89 academic year, the classical language offerings of BSU were transferred to the Department of History with Charles Odahl appointed Co-ordinator of Classical Languages. Odahl offers an intensive two semester course in Classical Latin Language and Literature in the first year of the program, and semester courses in Early Church Latin Literature and Medieval Latin Literature in the second year, with individual tutorials in specific texts available for a total of 20 hours of Latin work. Dr. Phillip McMillion of the Biblical Studies Center associated with BSU has been hired as a part-time faculty member in the program to offer a two semester course in Biblical Hebrew in the 1990-91 academic year. Several ancient, early Christian and medieval history courses and seminars are available through the History Department, and ancient mythology and philosophy courses are available through co-operating departments as well for students interested in the classics.

For the current 1989-90 academic year, Charles Odahl received the Dean's Research Associate Grant for the School of Social Sciences and Public Affairs. The grant gives Odahl a half time teaching load and full pay for the whole year so he will have extra time and energy to work on research and writing projects in his discipline. The fall and winter months are being used to complete a textbook on Early Christian Latin. An introductory chapter surveys the rise and development of Latin writing in the early Church from the second to fifth centuries A.D. The core of the text is composed of edited selections from the more important authors of the early Church, including the Vulgate Bible, Tertullian, Cyprian, Lactanius, Constantine the Great, St. Egeria, St. Ambrose, and St. Augustine. The texts are thematically related to show the evolution of early Christian thought in the fields of theology, ethics, ecclesiology, and Church-state relations. Odahl is providing a detailed introduction to each author and text, and a comprehensive footnote apparatus giving background information on the content of the texts and grammatical explanations on translating them. The book is illustrated throughout with maps, and prints of early Church sites and art relevant to the subject matter of the readings. A bibliographic essay at the end provides information on further reading. In the spring, Odahl will resume work on a book on Constantine and Christianity, which details the conversion of the Roman Emperor Constantine to Christianity, and the changes in the legal and material status of the Church and in the theological and ethical positions of Christianity which resulted from the emperor's patronage of the faith.

Professor Anthony A. Barrett's book, Caligula, The Corruption of Power, (London, Bratsford; New Hven, Yale University Press) has been chosen as a selection by the History Book Club in the USA and as the "Editor's Choice for January 1990" by the Ancient and Medieval History Book Club of England.

IN MEMORIAM MALCOLM FRANCIS MC GREGOR 1910-1989

We have received the sad news of the death of our friend and colleague, Malcolm Mc Gregor in November. We will miss him very much.

The following is reprinted from the Newsletter of the Department of Classics, University of British Columbia, Spring/Summer 1990.

Malcolm Francis McGregor, head of the University of British Columbia Classics Department for 21 years, between 1954 and 1975, died on November 10, 1989, after a year-long struggle with cancer. Professor McGregor was born in London, England, in 1910 and emigrated as a boy of fourteen. He took his bachelor's degree in classics from UBC in 1930, and the following year, completed a master's degree here as well, with a thesis directed by Harry T. Logan, whom Malcolm was later to succeed as department head. In 1931, he went for graduate work first to the University of Michigan, and then, two years later to the University of Cincinnati where he completed a dissertation under the direction of the Greek epigraphist A. B. West and received his doctorate in 1937.

West along with Benjamin Dean Meritt, who was one of the original professors of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, had been planning a book on the Tribute Lists of the fifth century (B.C.) Athenian Empire, and in 1934, Malcolm had spent a summer as a research assistant in Europe examining inscriptions having to do with the topic. When West died unexpectedly in 1936, Meritt invited Malcolm along with H. T. Wade-Gery of Oxford University to collaborate with him on the project. The result was The Athenian Tribute Lists, the first volume of which appeared in 1939 and the fourth and final volume in 1953. The work won the Goodwin Award of Merit from the American Philological Association for 1954.

In that year, Malcolm left the University of Cincinnati, where he had been a faculty member for eighteen years, and returned to his alma mater as professor of classics and department head. He retired as head in 1975, and from active teaching here two years later. However, he continued to teach part-time at Vancouver Community College (Langara Campus) until the onset of his final illness. He was a superb teacher, and a striking and familiar figure on campus, who always donned a gown to lecture and whose courses on ancient history and beginning Greek were legendary.

As well as the ATL, (to give it its customary designation) Malcolm's publications include Studies in Fifth-Century Attic Epigraphy (1973), in collaboration with the late Donald Bradeen on the University of Cincinnati and The Athenians and their Empire (University of British Columbia Press, 1987), aimed at the general reader. He was a past president of the American Philological Association (1969-70) and the Classical Association of Canada (1968-70) and he was a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada. His honours include a Guggenheim Fellowship (1948), honorary degrees from three Canadian universities, including UBC, and a Festschrift to mark his retirement, edited by two of his former students. In 1979 he was made Commander of the Order of the Phoenix by the Government of Greece.

He will be sorely missed, both by his friends in the classical profession and by the British Columbia Mainland Cricket League, of which he was an honorary vice-president. His wife, Marguerite Blanche Guinn, whom he married in 1938, predeceased him by only ten months, and he is survived by a daughter, a son, and five grandchildren.

National Committee for Latin and Greek

February 20, 1990

To: Officers and members of classical associations
 From: The NCLG's Classica Action Network
 Re: Legislative Alert!

PLEASE NOTIFY THE MEMBERS OF YOUR ASSOCIATION:

Letters are urgently needed now from all classics teachers and their colleagues in support of major foreign language legislation before Congress.

The Foreign Language Competence for the Future Act is the single most important piece of foreign language legislation in the past three decades. We must express vigorous support if Congress is to consider this legislation during the next session. You can demonstrate your support by calling or writing your senators and representatives TODAY asking them to co-sponsor S. 1690 or H.R. 2188.

Senate bill 1690 ($75 million) and House bill 2188 ($110 million) will provide:

- Grants for summer foreign language institutes for elementary and secondary language teachers;
- Scholarships (S. 1690) or forgivable loans (H.R. 2188) to encourage college students to major in foreign languages in order to teach;
- Foreign language foundations or institutes to provide language training, translation, and information services about other cultures to businesses.

At this time, the Senate bill has eight co-sponsors and the House bill forty-six. If a sufficient number of congressmen support these bills, they may be considered during this next session of the 101st Congress. But there must be strong support from the profession. In October the NCLG provided letters of support and testimony for S 1690 to the Senate Committee on Education, Arts and Humanities.

Write or call your senator or representative urging him to co-sponsor the bill (model letters enclosed) and request that he ask Rep. Augustus Hawkins, Chair of the House Education and Labor Committee, to hold hearings on H.R. 2188.

Without your calls and letters, this important initiative will die in committee without even a full hearing. PLEASE WRITE OR CALL!

Teachers of English or Latin (grades 7-12) are invited to apply to participate in a four-week summer institute (July 9-August 3, 1990) on Classical Mythology sponsored by the Research Center for Arts and Humanities at the University of Maryland, College Park. The Institute, funded by the Education Division of the National Endowment for the Humanities, will bring thirty-six teachers together with scholars in Classics and other fields to study the place of myth in Greek culture, the relations between Greek myth and the myths of other traditions, and the variety of ways in which different disciplines study myth. The institute will be co-directed by Verlyn Flieger, Associate Professor of English, and Gregory A. Staley, Associate Professor of Classics. Participants will receive a stipend of $1,000, room, board, books and travel expenses. For applications and additional information, contact: The Research Center, 1120 Francis Scott Key Hall, University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742. Telephone 301-454-1820. The deadline for receipt of completed applications is March 15, 1990.
